Dear Member,

As things warm up, many of us eagerly look forward to the summer movie blockbuster season. And what says "blockbuster" more these days than a team of superheroes fighting evil?

Here at Meemic, we're forming our own team: The Educators. You might have seen our hero nomination campaign over the winter. With the entries in, we're finding and announcing on social media all those educators with extra special abilities. And it's not just teachers; the team covers just about all facets of school life, from bus drivers to custodians, and librarians to administrators. Watch for the hashtag #EducatorsUnite and visit EducatorsUnite.org to meet the team.

One way you can be a superhero in your school is to join with The Meemic Foundation's Together Movement and Defeat the Label for Stand4Change Day 2018. Enroll your school to join locations around the world in taking a stand against bullying on May 4.

All educators are superheroes in our eyes, and we're proud to be your "secret" agent, offering you the great rates, coverage and service you deserve for all you do to help our kids, even if you don't wear a cape or tights.

Best,

How Meemic Helps Educators

Meemic is dedicated to serving the educational community. Our policies include many special benefits for educators you may not know about.

Meemic Member auto policies include the following:

- Coverage for educators' occasional transportation of students to or from school or a school event.
- If you have a loss on school property or during a school event at the location the event is taking place, and you have comprehensive coverage, your deductible will be waived.

Meemic Member home policies include the following:

- Teacher, professor and school administrator liability coverage.
- Up to $2,500 coverage for computers loaned to you by your employer for use at home.
- Up to $2,500 off premises for educators who use their own personal property in their daily school activities or other school-related functions, including tutoring, music and voice lessons.
- Liability coverage for your occasional or part-time business activities, such as a teacher instructing no more than five students per week while on the insured premises, at the residence of the student or on school property. This includes tutoring, music and/or voice lessons only.

For a comprehensive review of your policies, please contact your agent.

Join and Share the Meemic Foundation Club

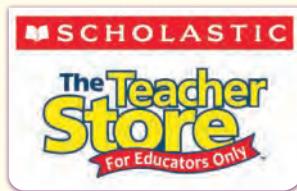

Hey, Meemic policyholders! If you're a Member of The Meemic Foundation Club, raise your hand. If your hand's up, great! That means you're in on the exclusive benefits Club membership brings. If not, don't worry – you, too, can join the Foundation Club. It's so simple to join ... and it's free!

Did you know that as a policyholder, you are already helping Meemic give back to many educational communities? Your continued loyalty has allowed us to provide millions of dollars in funding over the past few years for school and classroom educational needs through our nonprofit organization, The Meemic Foundation. This year alone, our goal is to provide up to $650,000 in support of education.

And if you're already a Club Member, help us spread the word! Friends share good news with friends, so if you know a friend or colleague who works for a school or university who could benefit from joining the Foundation Club, please invite them at MeemicFoundation.org/Refer.

Foundation Club Members have exclusive access to these benefits:

Grants: Get exclusive access to year-round grant opportunities, from our traditional grants of up to $500 for a variety of school projects, to specialty grants in partnership with top educational organizations like Scholastic and Lakeshore Learning. And applying is easy!

School & Office Supply Discounts: Foundation Club Members get a variety of special discounts from national business partners. And if you're also an employee of an educational institution, you can enjoy richer discounts and free shipping from Quill.com.

Free Webinars and Workshops: We encourage you to visit MeemicFoundation.org/Events often for the latest offerings of professional and personal development workshops. Miss one of our webinars? View them at your leisure as often as you'd like in our Members-only online webinar library!

Stand4Change Day Returns

The Meemic Foundation's Together Movement initiative will again be partnering with Defeat the Label to continue the fight against bullying in school. One of the most visible events is the annual Stand4Change Day, which returns Friday, May 4. On that day at 12 noon, thousands of students will literally stand up against bullying in classrooms and rallies around the world. Register your school at MeemicFoundation.org/Events.

Last year, we had the honor of taking part in an event at Avondale Middle School in Rochester Hills, MI, and streamed it live on our Facebook page (Facebook.com/Meemic). The experience was both exciting and heartwarming as a gym full of students took the pledge.

We look forward to another successful year and encourage you to visit MeemicFoundation.org/Together for a variety of local and national resources to combat bullying. Join the movement – let's be better together.

5 Most Dangerous Driving Distractions to Avoid

The National Safety Council has named April Distracted Driving Awareness Month, and recent research shows that about 10 percent of people who are in fatal crashes are distracted.

Statistics show that drivers who are holding electronic devices while driving are four times more likely to experience a serious accident. Teen drivers are more likely than any other age groups to be in fatal crashes resulting from distractions. There are several dangerous distractions that every driver should avoid:

Cell Phones Talking, texting or reading cell phones while driving are all common ways people cause accidents. In several states, it is illegal to use a handheld mobile phone while driving. About 12 percent of fatal crashes happen as a result of this practice. A person who is texting and driving is more likely to cause an accident than an intoxicated driver. In addition to this, more than 11 teen deaths per day and 1.5 million accidents per year are caused by drivers who are texting. To avoid the temptation, consider installing special software to disable the phone while the vehicle is moving.

Lost in Thought There are endless things a person could possibly be thinking about while driving. Whether a driver is looking for an address, trying to listen to the radio or daydreaming, accidents caused by general distractions account for more than 60 percent of all fatal crashes. It is important to stay mentally focused at all times.

Outside Event Almost every person has seen a distracting billboard, crash or other event outside. Many people crane their necks or slow down to look. These are dangerous habits, and about 7 percent of accidents were caused by such behaviors. Drivers should always avoid slowing down for outside distractions.

Friends Drivers who were distracted by or talking to their passenger friends while on the road accounted for about 5 percent of fatal crashes. Although it may be tempting to converse with friends while driving, it is important to stay focused on the road and surroundings at all times.

Searching for Lost Items People who were searching for maps, electronic devices or other items while driving accounted for about 2 percent of fatal crashes. Drivers should pull over to a safe area and stop before searching for any items in the vehicle.

Avoiding harmful practices is a good way to not only stay alive on the road but also to keep insurance rates lower. To enjoy the lowest possible rate, drivers need to consistently maintain a record that is free of negligent accidents. It is also important to stay vigilant and watch for distracted drivers in other vehicles on the road. To learn more, talk to your Meemic agent.

Meet Mr. D — a Superhero of Education

In 2017, Royal Oak, MI, teacher Joe Dombrowski became an Internet star when a video he posted of an April Fools Day spelling test went viral. Since then, he has appeared twice on "The Ellen Degeneres Show," moved to a suburban Chicago school district and travels the country to speak.

And in partnership with Meemic, we discovered his alter ego as educational superhero Captain Inspire. He uses his cerebral powers to fight threats to education as the first member of the Meemic super team The Educators. Joe talked to Meemic about his adventures over the past year.

What are you doing these days? Although I am on tour with speaking and making television appearances, I'm always on the very next flight right back to my classroom. I'm very humbled to be able to inspire educators all over the world. Ellen truly gave me a gift, and I believe the best way to use it is to use it for good.

How does it feel to be the superhero Captain Inspire? When Meemic first told me the name of the superhero, my jaw hit the floor. IT'S PERFECT! I think it absolutely captures everything that I'm trying to do with my platform. I am honored to be representing Meemic as Captain Inspire.

You were a Meemic Member before you came into the spotlight. How did you find us and how has that experience been? Three years ago, when I went to buy my Jeep (R.I.P, Beatrice), the dealer I was working with knew I was a teacher and just assumed I was with Meemic. He said something along the lines of, "If you're an educator, and not with Meemic, I don't know what you're actually doing with your life." I blindly trusted him, and I am really glad I did. Meemic is always extremely easy to work with, knowledgeable and exhibits the epitome of exceptional customer service. I'd just like everyone to know, also, that I never EVER agree to partner with organizations that I don't believe in. When Meemic approached me to partner for Educators Unite, it was a no-brainer.

What's your No. 1 message for teachers? BE. YOURSELF! The only way students will feel comfortable in their own skin is if you feel comfortable in yours. Embrace your weird and tell your kids it's OK to be different. It's our job to make sure school is their safe place. A place where they want to be, not have to be.

Meet Illinois' Teacher of the Year

In fall 2017, Illinois announced its 2018 Teacher of the Year, Lindsey Jensen of Dwight Township High School. Here, she talks about her experience.

I am both humbled and honored to serve as the 2018 Illinois Teacher of the Year.

In so many ways, I believe that I didn't choose teaching; teaching chose me. This occurred 12 years ago when I decided to take a job as a teacher's aide in a junior high behavioral disorder classroom.

I fell in love with teaching in an environment that would send most adults running for the hills. Despite the challenging days and difficult experiences, it was in this special classroom where I learned that teachers have the power to change lives.

I have worked in a variety of educational settings in the past 12 years. Eventually, I was fortunate enough to become an 11th and 12th grade English teacher at Dwight Township High School, which is a very special place that I have called "home" for the past nine years.

From an advocacy standpoint, as the 2018 Illinois Teacher of the Year, I take great responsibility in advocating for both teachers and students throughout our great state. I can think of no greater honor than to represent my colleagues and my students in the fight for public education. I believe that education equals empowerment. Therefore, it is our responsibility as educators to fight the elimination of funding from the very place where children learn to feel empowered. Schools are where children experience that America is the land of opportunity.

To my fellow colleagues who are raising their voices in this fight, keep up the good work!
