MOVEMENT
presented by Meemic

Dear Member,

We can't say it enough: Thank you for being part of the Meemic Family. Because of you, Meemic Insurance, your local agent and The Meemic Foundation can continue to work together to give back and support schools, teachers and students.

One way we're doing that is through The Meemic Foundation's latest initiative: the Together Movement, which addresses the issues of bullying, intolerance and disrespect.

Together with Defeat the Label and other partners, the Foundation hopes to bring awareness and effect change through an ongoing series of events, workshops and other programs, including our recent student video contest and 2015 Michigan Teacher of the Year Melody Arabo's popular "The Bully Mindset Shift" workshops.

I encourage you to sign up your school for Stand4Change day, a worldwide community action taking place May 5 to unite our voices against bullying. Our agents are getting involved, too - spreading the word to local schools and districts.

We know this issue is vitally important to us all. As Meemic members, your continued trust in the company and support of the Foundation allow us to do our part to help make things better. Find out more inside.

Sincerely,

Brad Roeber
Chief Operating Officer

Fight Bullying with the Together Movement

25 YEARS

The Meemic Foundation

These days, news reports and Facebook feeds contain too many incidents of bullying, intolerance and disrespect. In response, The Meemic Foundation, which is celebrating its 25th anniversary this year, has launched the Together Movement initiative to help our students, schools and communities embrace our differences.

One of our partners in this endeavor is Defeat the Label, an internationally known nonprofit based in Michigan. Its mission is to empower students and put an end to bullying. Working with them on their first Community Conversation on Bullying conference last fall inspired us to do even more to address this significant issue, including hosting their follow-up event, Continuing the Conversation, on May 6 at Meemic's headquarters.

"We're incredibly lucky and fortunate to have found such a perfect partner," says Defeat the Label Executive Director Jamie Greene. "I think we work together fantastically. Meemic 'gets it' from all points."

To help expand awareness, we recently launched a student video contest. Building off the success of our student-engaged Meemic Masterpieces art contests, we wanted to give creative students a different kind of opportunity to showcase their skills by crafting 30-second videos on the themes of bully prevention, being kind and embracing differences.

Meemic Foundation Club members were asked to sponsor student video entries for a chance to receive a $300 grant for their school to use at Office Depot®, Inc., and an Amazon Fire® HD tablet for the winning student producer. We have been so impressed with the level of creativity from students of all ages.

It's not a coincidence that we are announcing the winners of the student video contest on May 5, the same day as Defeat the Label's Stand4Change event. Last year, more than 5.4 million students around the world stood together to take the pledge to end bullying.

"It's our yearly call to action for students," Jamie says. "It's an opportunity for students, schools and administrators to take a physical stand against bullying. We'd love to have over 6 million students participate. It would be great since it's our sixth year."

We're currently working on even more projects and partnerships that we'll be announcing in the future. Soon, you'll be able to find the latest information and classroom resources that can be used for this important fight, and a link to see the winners of our video contest after May 5, at MeemicFoundation.org/Together.

Meemic Masterpieces Winners

Meemic Masterpieces, a K-12 grant and student art contest, returned this past fall. Last month, we were pleased to announce 50 winners that will have their artwork adorning the walls of Meemic headquarters in Auburn Hills, MI. For this round, we received almost 500 entries.

The winning sponsoring Foundation Club members received $300 grants for art supplies, while the student artists each received an Amazon Fire® HD tablet. During the first week of May, an open house art gallery will be held at Meemic to exhibit the amazing talent of these students. In appreciation of all the entries, every student who submitted artwork received a personalized certificate of recognition.

Coming soon: In April, look for the return of our popular Back-to-School grants. It may seem odd to think about fall as the daffodils are blooming, but the grant money will be awarded just in time for the new school year.

Water's Source Is Key to Coverage if There's a Flood

So you head down to the basement and discover several inches of water. For many homeowners, this is a nightmare scenario that can cause confusion when it comes to filing an insurance claim.

The first question to ask yourself: Where did the water come from?

If a pipe burst, that would likely be covered under your homeowners policy, subject to your deductible and any exclusions in your policy.

If there has been a large rain event, such as the one that soaked much of Southeast Michigan in August 2014, that question is the biggest determining factor on whether it's a covered loss.

Sump Pump Failure/Sewage Backup

If your sump pump failed and/or the water is backing up from the sewers, you may be able to file a claim if you purchased an endorsement for sump pump and sewer backup coverage.

For an additional premium, you'll be covered for losses caused by water from outside the house that enters the dwelling or an additional structure through household sewers, drains or drainage fixtures, or a sump pump or sump pump well. These damages are not covered under a standard homeowners policy.

This coverage is subject to your deductible and any exclusions listed in your homeowners policy. These exclusions include, but are not limited to, damages from water that leaks through cracks in the foundation wall or that fills up a window well and leaks into the basement.

For more information on this endorsement, contact your agent.

Other Outside Water

If the water is coming from the outside through other means (e.g., windows, doorway), you may be able to file a claim if you have purchased flood insurance.

Conventional insurers like Meemic don't have their own flood policies, but provide this coverage through third parties. Meemic offers flood insurance through Foremost Insurance Group, a participating insurer of the National Flood Insurance Program (NFIP). The NFIP is administered and regulated by the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA).

Contrary to popular belief, you don't have to live in a "flood zone" to buy flood insurance, but your city does have to be opted in to the NFIP.

Mortgage companies often require flood insurance if the home is in a Special Flood Hazard Area (SFHA), which means there is an increased likelihood of experiencing a flood loss. But just about any home can fall victim to flooding, so insurance is available at various rates and coverage levels depending on your location's flood risk and other factors.

When it comes to the basement, though, these flood policies can be restrictive. Your furnace, washer and dryer might be covered, for example, but the policies limit the amount of coverage on finished basements and many common personal items that might be stored in the basement.

➔ For more information on the NFIP and to help determine your flood risk, visit FloodSmart.gov and talk to your agent.

This is intended solely for informational purposes. This is not a policy of insurance. Your policy and its endorsements, plus applicable deductibles, determine exact coverages and payment of losses.

Reflections of a High School Principal

Robin Kvalo of Portage High School is one of Wisconsin's Principals of the Year, an award Meemic is proud to sponsor. Here, she talks about the experience.

What an honor it has been to be Wisconsin's Secondary State Principal of the Year, representing Wisconsin at the National Association of Secondary School Principals POY Institute in Washington, D.C. As a 23-year veteran of public education, I was so proud to share all we are doing in Wisconsin to impact the lives of young people.

I am an advocate for my students and staff. I am a change agent. I model and believe in high standards for all students and staff, striving to make sure each meet their full potential. As a leader, I firmly believe you must have trust in order to move forward. I also know the climate and culture do matter. Students and staff who feel safe and happy, perform best. I believe you must walk your talk, be positive, and be present and visible to all your stakeholders. With that, they will support and trust you.

Our jobs as principals are endless, tiring and sometimes frustrating, but the reward is seen every day in the strides our students make because of decisions we support.

My motto is, "PHS – a place where dreams can be realized." I didn't know when I began this journey of being a high school principal that my dreams would also be realized. I love my students and staff, and serving my community in the most important profession there is. I love my job and am proud to say, "I am a high school principal."

Coming Soon ...

We're always looking for ways to improve the member experience, whether it's through new products or updates to customer service.

We recently rolled out upgrades to our online Account Center, including a single login to access insurance policy and Meemic Foundation Club information.

Coming later this year, we plan to extend that functionality to your smart devices with a Meemic mobile app. You'll have full, optimized access to your account information without having to go through your Internet browser.

Benefits for using the Account Center include:

- ✓ View your bill
 - ✓ Make a payment
 - ✓ File a claim
 - ✓ Review your policy
 - ✓ Apply for a Foundation grant
- And more!

And in an effort to "go green," we'll soon be offering the option to receive billing statements and policy documents electronically, allowing us to cut back greatly on paper and waste, and help the environment.

Look for these changes and more in the coming months, and if you have any comments or suggestions, email us at Communications@Meemic.com.

3 Insurance Hazards to Watch for

While most Americans welcome the spring season with its warmer temperatures and sunnier days, seasoned homeowners know that it can also bring several problems. As the snow melts, the damage of winter weather is often revealed.

1 Hail Damage Spring storms are often severe enough to produce hail. These ice balls hit roofs and unprotected vehicles hard enough to cause cracks or dents. Damage to the home's roof is often covered under a home insurance policy. If the hail breaks a window and causes rain to force its way into the home, the broken window and resulting water damage are both usually covered, as well. Auto owners should review their coverage to find out if they are covered for hail damage.

2 Rust When temperatures allow, it's a good idea to get your car washed during winter. Now that spring is here, vehicle owners should wash their cars at a drive-through carwash that also sprays the undercarriage. This helps remove salt residue that accumulates on the vehicle from the roads. Salt can damage a car and cause rust or worsen existing rust problems. Rust is not covered on an auto policy.

3 Damaged Landscape Ice storms or heavy snow, if not removed quickly, may flatten trees, bushes and landscaping. It is important to remove dead tree branches every spring. This is especially true if they are hanging over the home itself. Rotting mulch and other hazards should be removed. Home insurance policies do not cover snow-damaged trees, bushes or grass.

It is important to address issues immediately and take preventative measures. To learn more about preparing for hazards and updating insurance, discuss concerns with your agent.
